Fall Opening at "King's Palace."

To-morrow will be the first of the fall opening days at King's Palace, No. 814 Seventh street. Mr. King has recently returned from a trip to the capital cities of Europe, where he studied the latest style and where he obtained a choice selection. He is thus ahead of those who depend upon New York houses for their supplies as well as for middle houses, but citizens are greatly pleased.

The New Medical College.

The medical department of the George-Town University will take possession this evening of their new quarters in the basement of the new building, 11th and F street, between Ninth and Tenth northwest. The building has a pressed brick front, built in modern style and is a very handsome structure. It was erected especially for the use of the medical students, and has every facility for such a purpose. The first floor is a large lecture room with tables and iron sinks and a blackboard. In the rear of this room is the faculty room, a very sunny apartment. The stairs, over which the rooms are arranged, provide a number of windows to admit a flood of light. Then passing through a hall to the front of the building the junior lecture room is reached. Offices, reception rooms, and a library will be found on the student's main entrance and give the comfortable quarters in which to pursue their studies.

The New St. Paul's Chapel.

Candid Gibbons, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Foley, Rev. Fathers Clarke, Starr, Manus, Gately, McGurk, Noonan, Devine, Donohue, Chappelle, Walsh, Dr. Ruyer and Merrick, yesterday laid the cornerstone of the new St. Paul's Chapel, in this city. After consecrating the water, the alter and pulpit, the Rev. Dr. Foley, Dr. Ruyer and Merrick, placed in the corner-stone, together with a parchment setting forth the history of the chapel. This was followed by a short service of thanksgiving.

May 1st, the final funeral was over, and the band started home. "Now, give 'em hell, Lee! Behind 'em, boys!" exclaimed Lee, as to this affecting air he rode back into town.

Next day he married his deceased wife's sister.—[Boston Record].

Some one has declared conceit worse than consumption, and the comparison is a true one. Many are the "conceited" who dry down legitimate remedies, and who do little suffering humanity, whose only salvation is the immediate use of Dr. Buff's Cough Syrup.

Select Steamed Oysters at St. Marc's.

Donnelly's Oyster Restaurant.

This excellent ladies' and gentlemen's restaurant, on the corner of Fourteenth and I streets northwest, has been thoroughly renovated and is one of the best conducted establishments in Washington. Mr. Donnelly had some trouble with the authorities in procuring his license, but when the case was finally investigated, his license was immediately granted. This is his first season for steamed oysters, and his facilities are perfect in this particular line. After the theatres are closed, the parties will be the only decent place to get every delicacy in the city. The establishment is spickily furnished, with all its appointments first-class. It has fifteen large airy and well-ventilated rooms. Politeness and promptness are Mr. Donnelly's motto.

A MARVELOUS CHANGE.
Why People Are Less Strong, Active and Happy Than in Past Years.

There was a time when the world moved along in the even course of its way; now we are startled by earthquakes, dynamite explosions and surprising things in the heavens and on earth. There was a time when men and women went through life easily, and happily; now they are troubled with headache, sinking at the pit of the stomach, nervousness, restlessness, shiverings, feverishness, dullness and lassitude. There was a time when these troubles were called chills, fever andague or shakes; now they are all grouped under the single head of Malaria.

But under whatever name this disease may be known, it is terrible. It not only destroys the human body, but it shortens the life. It often starts in a slight way that its approach is unexpected, but before long there comes a chill, or cold stage, especially down the spine. The skin becomes rough. The nails are blue. The back aches. The pulse is quick and tight. This comes the hot stage. The skin is hot and dry, the face flushed, the pulse fast and rapid and the mouth parched, with a great desire to drink. This is agony.

In this connection the experience of a prominent captain residing on the east shore of Maryland is valuable. He said:

"So great was my suffering with malarial fever, that I almost desired to die, that I might be at rest. My brain seemed to be possessed with delirium. My next desire was to get out of the world, to stand by God with the pain. The doctors gave me quinine but what a mischievous drug that is! It only added fuel to the fire that was burning me up. I gave up the doctors, in despair. They could do me no good. I asked a druggist whom I knew to tell me which one of all these things on his shelves I had better try. He told me Volina Cordial had cured his son, and I took it. It did me good and I am well again. I soon found there was no quinine in it, and nothing to hurt me, but everything to do me good. The first bottle helped me a great deal. Then I kept on, with a determination to get rid of the malarial fever so thoroughly that it would never come back again."

The above experience is the same as many hundreds of others have found in the use of this wonderful remedy. It finds those suffered in the depths of depression and brings them back to health and happiness. It takes the despondent and restores hope. It gives the strength and energy to do the work of the day.
